Strangers

A stranger is a person that you have never met before.

People walking down the street or shopping in a store are examples of strangers.

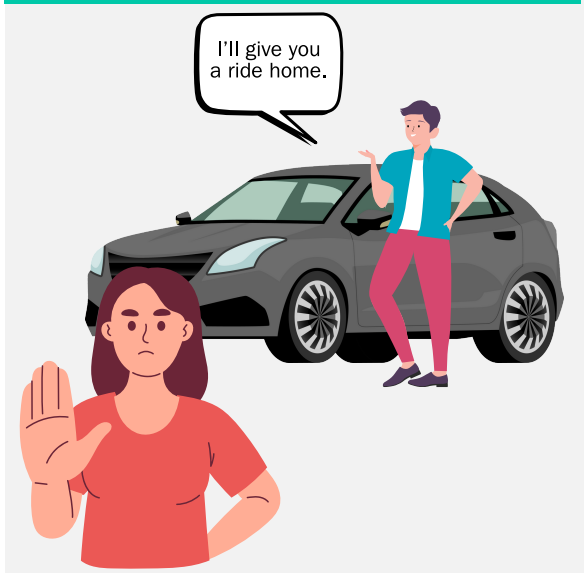

Sometimes strangers will smile or say “hello” if you walk past them, it’s ok to smile and say “hello” back.

You shouldn’t tell strangers personal things about yourself.

You should never get into a car or leave with someone you don’t know.

If a stranger tries to talk to you, asks you to go somewhere with them, or makes you feel uncomfortable, walk away and find a trusted adult.

Be Safe
Ask. Listen. Respect.

ASERT
Bringing autism resources together.

Pennsylvania’s leading source of autism-related resources and information
877-231-4244

The ASERT Collaborative is funded by the Office of Developmental Programs, PA Department of Human Services