Public Comment: The Process

SHARE YOUR IDEAS

A public comment is a way to tell leaders what you think about a new rule, service, or program. Your ideas can help make things better.

HOW IT WORKS

1. Leaders ask for ideas about a new rule, service, or program.
2. People share what they think.
3. Leaders read the comments and may make changes.

WHY IT MATTERS

- You can tell leaders what you think.
- Your ideas can help make services better.
- You can speak up about things that are important to you.

The ASERT Resource Center has information that can help you learn more before you share your ideas. Visit PAautism.org to learn more.

The ASERT Collaborative is funded by the Office of Developmental Programs, PA Department of Human Services
