

My private parts are the parts of my body that I cover with a bathing suit.

Sexual abuse is when someone wants to see or touch my private parts or wants me to see or touch theirs.

If someone wants to see or touch my private parts, I should tell the person to stop.

If someone wants to show me their private parts or wants me to touch their private parts, I should tell them to stop.

When people do these things, they may tell me that what happened is a secret.

I should not keep it a secret. I should tell my parents or an adult that I trust.

This campaign promotes the idea of body autonomy for individuals with disabilities. ASERT has partnered with researchers at the National Crime Victims Research and Treatment Center at the Medical University of South Carolina to develop resources for the Be Safe campaign.

The Autism Services, Education, Resources and Training (ASERT) Collaborative is a statewide initiative funded by the Bureau of Autism Services, PA Department of Human Services.