

I can choose who is allowed to touch me.

If someone touches me and I don't like it, I should tell them to stop.

If someone touches me and I don't like it, I should tell my parents or an adult I trust.

If someone has hurt me, I can call 911 or talk to the police.

I should tell these people as much as I can about what happened.

I should always tell the truth.

This campaign promotes the idea of body autonomy for individuals with disabilities. ASERT has partnered with researchers at the National Crime Victims Research and Treatment Center at the Medical University of South Carolina to develop resources for the Be Safe campaign.

The Autism Services, Education, Resources and Training (ASERT) Collaborative is a statewide initiative funded by the Bureau of Autism Services, PA Department of Human Services.
